To whom it may concern,

I am truly pleased to write this letter of recommendation in support of Allan Kehler, and his recent engagements with our company. We were incredibly grateful to have Allan facilitate conversations on mental health, wellness and resiliency at our SGI CANADA Broker Convention in April (where he was greeted to standing-room-only attendance!), as well as our Regional Broker Council and Town Hall events (in four different provinces) this past Fall.

I, as well as other SGI CANADA team members, have shared this same feedback with Allan in person, and we also wanted to be able to support him with a letter of acknowledgment. Allan shared his own story with such authenticity and vulnerability, which visibly supported our attendees to be able to lean into his presentation and to share of themselves. The parallels that he was able to draw between our business of insurance and his own life brought about a sharing of knowledge, compassion, and professionalism, which enriched our discussions and left a lasting impact on our valuable broker partners, as well as our team members in attendance.

Throughout all the engagements, Allan provided valuable insights that resonated deeply with our attendees. His ability to create a safe and open space encouraged honest dialogue, allowing participants to share their experiences and concerns without hesitation. This approach fostered understanding and contributed to a culture of support within our events.

Allan's engaging presentation style and ability to connect with the audience were particularly impressive. As shared above, he tailored the conversations to address our specific topic(s), ensuring that the content was relevant and relatable. The feedback we have received from participants was overwhelmingly positive, with many expressing a renewed commitment to supporting one another and themselves.

I/we, wholeheartedly recommend Allan Kehler for any future engagements related to mental health, wellness and resiliency. Allan's sharing of his own story, coupled with his passion and caring for humans, along with his skillful facilitation, makes him an invaluable resource. He is also a lovely human to get to spend time with!

Thank you for taking the time to read our words of acknowledgment for Allan.

Respectfully,

Janine Hynd-Johnson (She/Her/Hers), BA CIP
